Area Overview

Jackson, Missouri and its counterpart, Cape Girardeau, provide refuge for loads of weary travelers each year in their corner of southeastern Missouri. Still possessing a unique small town feel, Jackson also provides all the conveniences of much larger metropolitan areas...including self-serve gasoline and drive-up banking.

When you enter Jackson, you'll be pleasantly surprised by the unique Bavarian architecture of the buildings. These Franconia-styled buildings were built by Drury's very own engineers and carpenters—but they couldn't have constructed these buildings without a hearty breakfast. In Jackson, no morning meal is heartier than Drury's free, HOT! QUIKSTART breakfast. Make sure you have our Belgian waffles, scrambled eggs and sausage before heading out to the Burfordville Mill and Covered Bridge Historic Site. After a day of sightseeing, head back to Drury for some free pick-me-ups.
